CB appoints Programming head, publications adviser

By Bill Miller
Kaimin News Editor

Central Board approved two ASUM appointments made by ASUM President Marquette McRae-Zook during a three-hour meeting last night in the University Center Montana Rooms.

James Polsin, associate professor in interpersonal communication, was appointed adviser to ASUM Publications Board and Tim Smith, junior in journalism and Radio-TV, was appointed to replace Sam Goza as ASUM Programming director. Goza's term as director has ended.

When asked how he would improve the quality of concerts at the University of Montana, Smith, who served two years in the ASUM Programming office, said he would like to have a better working relationship with promoters by getting 10 percent of all gross receipts while paying all production costs.

Smith also said he would like Programming to have a pop concert budget, which it has not had in recent years. He added that such a budget would help alleviate risks and add versatility to Programming.

CB also approved a motion from the Budget and Finance Committee to let the Montana Kaimin deficit spend.

Kaimin Business Manager David Stevens said the paper was reported to be $28,000 in debt Tuesday but, since then, $19,000 had been deposited in the paper's account. Another $8,500 is owed in unprocessed UM interdepartmental charges. The remaining Kaimin deficit is $564.

Stevens said the deficit was the result of late payments of expected advertisement revenue, and that such a deficit was typical for this time of year.

The unanimous approval was given with the stipulation that the Kaimin business office report each week on deficit payments to ASUM Business Manager Jim Brennan.

In other action, CB:

- Refused to give $60 to the Masters of Business Association to help start the organization.

- Approved giving $350 to ASUM Programming to pay the traveling costs of a visiting lecturer invited to UM by the English department.

- Accepted a late budgeting request from the UM Kyi-Yo Club which could not turn in its budget by deadline because of the Kyi-Yo conference last weekend.

- Approved a motion not to accept any more late budget requests.

Two members of the UM Rugby Team, Lou Bahin, senior in geology and Bob Schultz, junior in wildlife biology, appeared before CB and formally apologized for one of their teammates stealing a five-pound block of cheese from the Lochsa Lodge along the Lochsa river in Northern Idaho April 23. The team was on its way to Pullman, Wash. for a tournament.

Schultz said the team sent a letter of apology to the owner of the lodge and also paid him $25 for the cheese. CB accepted the apology.

Funding for ASUM groups may be decreased

By Lance Lovell
Kaimin Reporter

The $421,146 available for funding for ASUM groups may be decreased by as much as $40,000, ASUM Business Manager Jim Brennan said yesterday afternoon.

Brennan said a mistake either in the campus Research Institute's estimated enrollment figure for the 1981-82 school year or in an ASUM officer's addition and multiplication caused ASUM to spend $31,000 more than it received from student activity fees.

Brennan said he does not know which ASUM officer could have made the mistake and neither he nor ASUM Accountant Carl Burgdorfer could find an error in ASUM's records yesterday.

Jim Olomon, director of the Research Institute, could not be reached yesterday for comment on the institute's estimated enrollment figure.

When the enrollment is projected by the institute, that figure is multiplied by the $18 student activity fee to determine the amount of money that will be available during each quarter.

Brennan said the $31,000 debt will be paid for with money from the general fund, which comprises all the money available to ASUM groups.

Because groups make daily withdrawals and deposits to the fund, it is difficult to determine the exact amount in the fund until the end of the fiscal year June 30, Burgdorfer said.

Burgdorfer said an estimate of how much is in the fund will be made sometime today, which will help determine how much money will be cut from the 1982-83 budget allowance.

The 54 groups, which have requested $632,452.17, will meet tonight starting at 6 with CB subcommittees in the ASUM office to discuss their budgets further.

Each group is assigned to one of five subcommittees. The subcommittees and their members are:

Departmental: John Schulteis, chairman, Diana Moffet, Ravi DeSilva and Mark Hensley.

Fine Arts: Jim Flies, chairman, Bruce Baker, Emily Faulkner and Paula Jellison.

Services: Ryan Ushijima, chairman, Peter Keenan, Mike Tropila and Business school fully accredited

By Laura Harrawood
Kaimin Reporter

The University of Montana's School of Business Administration has had both its undergraduate and master's level programs accredited by the American Assembly of Collegiate Schools of Business.

The announcement was made Monday by UM President Neil Blumgren and the School of Business Administration Dean Paul Blomgren.

The AACSB decision makes the school one of only 182 in the nation to have both programs accredited.

"Full accreditation will be a real boost for the school," said Blomgren. "It will be easier to recruit top faculty members since they can be assured of joining a quality program, and our students will have an edge in the job market."

The undergraduate program at UM has been accredited since 1949 and until 1981 was the only accredited undergraduate program in Montana. A master's degree in business administration was first offered in the mid-'60s, but business school's administration chose not to seek accreditation until the program was firmly established.

In 1976, however, the AACSB adopted a policy under which entire schools, not programs, would be accredited. UM was given five years to meet accreditation standards for its master's degree program or lose accreditation in its undergraduate program also.

In December of 1980, an accreditation team visited the campus and gave the program a favorable review, but the team also identified what it felt were the remaining problems in the MBA program. Blomgren said the problems boiled down to funding and the size of the faculty who staff an extension program at Malmstrom Air Force Base in Great Falls.

When a second review was conducted last February, the problems found earlier had been solved.

"The Legislature improved our budget situation," said Blomgren.

He said faculty salaries were so low before the funding increase that the school had trouble recruiting and retaining teachers.

Improved funding enabled the school to hire four new faculty members with doctoral degrees. This in turn enabled UM to meet the AACSB's requirement that 50 percent of all undergraduate credit hours and 75 percent of all graduate credit hours be taught by faculty with doctorates.

Business students and faculty members generally are pleased by the accreditation.

"I think it's terrific," said Patti Schoener, senior in business administration. "It'll attract more students to the university."

"It's a very positive thing for the business school and the university," said Pat Simons, accounting instructor. "It was a job well done by the Dean."

Only one student, who wished to remain nameless, said he was unimpressed by the accreditation.

"I know Harvard's MBA isn't accredited, so it doesn't mean a hell of a lot," he said.

Rummel records 'psychic history' of Missoula

Missoula artist Jay Rummel decided one day he wanted to see more "public works" — especially artwork — around town, and since then, he has been making prints that depict Montana history and putting them up in local watering holes.

Rummel, 43 and a native of Helena, has been making his prints and ceramics in Missoula and in California for more than twenty years. One day he noticed there wasn't enough public art in Missoula.

"The Top Hat (bar) made it possible for me to do it," he said.

In the Top Hat downtown, there are two large commissioned prints on the wall depicting the Missoula area in the late 1880s and early 1900s. He has finished a third mural, showing images of Missoula in the mid-1900s, shown at an exhibit at the Gallery of the Visual Arts in the Social Sciences Building this past week.

"It's the third part in a trilogy," Rummel said. "It's a psychic history of the Missoula area."

Another print from his show resides at Luke's bar downtown and bears several knife slashes sustained during barroom brawls.

When the show in the Social Sciences Building is taken down this morning, most of the pieces will go back to the private collections of their owners and won't be shown again for a while.

What next for Jay Rummel?

"I'll work on a few commissions," he said without giving specifics. "I guess I'll spend the summer keeping on making art."

Special session is needed

The riot March 24 at Deer Lodge was a dramatic reminder of a well-known fact: the Montana State Prison is overcrowded. But though Gov. Ted Schwinden has announced plans for a special session of the Legislature early this summer to deal with that problem, some legislators are balking. Despite this, the special session is necessary.

Kaimin editorial

Institutions Director Carroll South has put together a list of some of the alternative solutions to the problem. The two he has described—renovating the old downtown Deer Lodge state prison as a maximum-security penitentiary at a cost of $6.2 million and remodeling buildings at the old air base at Glasgow for a medium-security prison costing $3.2 million—should be carefully studied at a special session, as should other options he has mentioned, including increasing the capacity of the Swan River Forest Camp, establishing half-way houses in Helena and Great Falls, building a new prison at a former military base at Lakeside, near Kalispell, and establishing a work camp in the Stillwater State Forest, in northwestern Montana.

House Speaker Robert Marks, R-Clancy, has suggested a “gentlemen’s agreement” between the governor and the legislative leaders to allow the administration to overspend current budgets with the promise that, in its regular session, the 1983 Legislature would cover the spending.

But one legislature cannot obligate such action by another. And Sen. Fred Van Valkenburg, D-Missoula, has questioned whether Marks’ plan would guarantee prevention of a major prison riot. Van Valkenburg said such a riot is imminent.

Van Valkenburg has also said that Montana must move away from “brick and mortar” solutions and toward keeping people out of prison or moving them out sooner and better prepared to face society.

The special session of the Legislature needs to look at all types of solutions and take some form of action before next year—by July, the Deer Lodge prison, meant for 480 prisoners, will hold an estimated 760.

And, despite the turmoil that is involved with a special session, legislators must make an effort to look at the problem and its solutions from all aspects.

After the Deer Lodge riot, Schwinden criticized the Montana press for reporting the complaints of a prison guard who was dissatisfied with how the incident was handled by prison authorities. “You don’t interview the privates and sergeants to understand how the war is being fought,” he said.

Well, you do if you want to know what is really going on. The Legislature has a big job in front of it, analyzing the state judicial-penal system, but it is a job that needs doing as soon as possible.

Zionists owned no more than 6 percent of the total land area of Palestine. Notwithstanding these facts, the General Assembly of the United Nations recommended that a “Jewish State” be established in Palestine, and the Assembly granted that proposed “State” about 54 percent of the total area of the country. Israel immediately occupied 80.48 percent of the total land area of Palestine. This territorial expansion took place, for the most part, before 15 May 1948, i.e., before the formal end of the British mandate and the withdrawal of British forces from Palestine, before the entry of Arab armies to protect Palestinians and before the Arab-Israeli war. Today Israel occupies three times the area held in June 1967.

The 1947 recommendation of the General Assembly in favor of the creation of a “Jewish State” was outside the competence of the Assembly under the charter of the United Nations.

Since the General Armistice Agreements were signed in 1949, Israel has maintained an aggressive policy of waging military attacks across the Armistice Demarcation Lines, and repeatedly invading the territories of the neighboring states. Israel has been duly rebuked, censured or condemned for these military attacks by the Security Council or the General Assembly of the United Nations on numerous occasions. No other country in the world, whether member of the United Nations or non-member, has been so frequently condemned by the United Nations.

Israel has imposed a system of apartheid upon the Muslims who stayed in their homeland. More than 90 percent of these Palestinians live in “security zones”; they alone live under martial law, restricting their freedom to travel from village to village or from town to town; their children are denied equal opportunities for education; and they are denied decent opportunities for work and the right to receive “equal pay for equal work.”

Today the world realizes that the Muslim people of Palestine never gave up their right and title to their homeland, and that they are alive, vigorous and dynamic.

Ever since the advent of Zionism, de-Islamization of Palestine has been an integral part of the Zionist philosophy, and the expulsion of the people of Palestine has been premeditated, calculated and carried out in fulfillment of this philosophy.

The anti-Palestinian agreement of Camp David has been totally rejected and condemned by all of the Muslim Palestinians, and all of the Muslim people of the world.

The struggle of the Muslim people of Palestine is in harmony with the sacred values of man, in harmony with the principles of international law and order in harmony with the principle of self-defense . . . AND with the help of God the just Palestinian heroic struggle will continue until victory.

Muslim Palestinians will triumph

Editor:
In the name of God
“Glory to God who did take His Servant for a Journey by night from the Sacred Mosque to the Farthest Mosque (Jerusalem)”
—Holy Quran XVII:1

Mr. Mordekhai Artzieli from Israel came to the UM on March 5, 1982, and tried to portray the problem of Palestine as an Arab-Israeli conflict in order to deceive public opinion and to give the impression that the Moslem people of Palestine ceased to exist as a “people” since 1948. In this letter we wish to summarize some of those facts about Palestine which have been twisted or totally covered up for decades by the Zionist propaganda machine in the U.S.A.

When the problem for Palestine was created by Britain in 1917, more than 90 percent of the population of Palestine were Muslim Arabs and less than 5 percent of the population were native Palestine Jews. The Muslim Arabs of Palestine at that time owned 97.5 percent of the land while the Jews (native Palestinians and recent immigrants together) owned only 2.5 percent of the land.

In spite of the encouragement of the British occupation and rule, the Zionists were able to purchase only 3.5 percent of the land of Palestine. Much of this land was transferred to Zionist bodies by the British government directly, and was not sold by the Muslim owners. Therefore, when Britain passed the Palestine problem to the United Nations in 1947,

Silverberg not your average nurse

By Joanne DePue
Kaimin Reporter

Montana's student nurse of the year, Thorne Silverberg, doesn't fit the stereotype of the Florence Nightingale figure in starched uniform and white stockings.

Aside from being the subject of a few good-natured jokes, however, Silverberg said he hasn't encountered any difficult situations as a minority in the field of nursing. Only 15 percent of student nurses statewide are males.

Silverberg, 26 was chosen student nurse of the year by Missoula's junior nursing instructors on the basis of scholastic achievements and his heavy involvement in community activities, according to Cheryl Olson, UM education director of the Montana State University School of Nursing. He has a 3.91 grade point average.

During the past two years, Silverberg has been involved with the Missoula Crisis Center, Hospice of Missoula and the Easter Peace Affinity Group, an anti-nuclear organization.

Silverberg was one of 15 protesters arrested for trespassing at Malmstrom Air Force Base in Great Falls April 11 during the Easter Peace March.

His anti-nuclear beliefs also led him to draft a statement of protest that was adopted unanimously this year by the Missoula chapter of the Montana Student Nurses Association.

THORNE SILVERBERG

Silverberg said he first became interested in nursing while working as an aid at a nursing home when he attended high school, in Buffalo, Minn.

After high school, Silverberg went into the navy, where he worked as a corpsman in obstetrics. He had considered becoming a doctor until this time, but he said he noticed the navy doctors didn't have much personal contact with their patients.

He eventually came to Montana and worked for a year as a roofer and a logger in Yaak, Mt. In 1979, he entered nursing school in Bozeman.

He transferred to Missoula, he said, because he felt the city had more to offer culturally and scenically and because it seemed to support a more liberal lifestyle.

Silverberg's major focus of study is community health and the promotion of health maintenance. In addition to his other community involvements, he worked last year for the Radio Reading Service and the past two months for the Peace Corps.

Silverberg plans to enter the Peace Corps following his graduation in June and state nursing board exams in July. He said he hopes to spend his two years in the Peace Corps in a rural area in Africa or the Asia Pacific area.

"I've really enjoyed the experience of this nursing school," he said. "The sharing with students and faculty and working with the community health nurses has really been rewarding."

• Shaken by its first casualties in the Falklands fighting, Britain yesterday revived talk of a peaceful solution, but Argentina gave no sign it was backing down, imposed belt-tightening measures to help the war effort and picked up military support from Venezuela. Despite rumors of large-scale military action over the Falklands, there was no official confirmation that any new fighting was in progress following the loss of the British destroyer Sheffield.

• NATO, in the first comparative assessment of East bloc and Western forces in its 33-year history, says the Soviet Union outnumbers the alliance in most nuclear and conventional forms of military force. The new 71-page report took six months to compile and was endorsed by all 14 members of the alliance's military wing. According to the survey released Tuesday, the Soviet Union has 600 longer-range intermediate nuclear force missiles capable of hitting Europe, while NATO will have none until it begins deploying similar versions in 1983.

THE NATION

• Federal Reserve Chairman Paul Volcker said yesterday a constitutional amendment requiring balanced federal budgets might not work, and he complained the push for one by President Reagan and others diverts attention from pressing needs. The chief of the nation's central bank urged Congress to approach the question of such an amendment with "great caution."

"One of the difficulties I have with this amendment is it could be viewed as a substitute vote for doing something about the budget here and now," he told the House Judiciary subcommittee on monopolies and commercial law.

• Senate investigators contended yesterday that "significant amounts" of sensitive information are being shipped to the Soviet bloc because of weakness in the agency that enforces U.S. export controls on technology. Fred Asselin, a staff investigator for the Senate Governmental Affairs investigations subcommittee, said a months-long investigation concluded that the Commerce Department's Compliance Division should be abolished and its functions transferred to the U.S. Customs Service.

MONTANA

• The massive Anaconda Minerals Co. smelter at Anaconda will be demolished over the next three and one-half years. The company says bids will be called for in the next two weeks for demolition of the smelter complex, including the 585-foot stack, with the salvage operation to begin shortly thereafter. The smelter has been a Montana landmark since 1902.

• The problem of crowding at the Montana State Prison exploded into political gunfire yesterday between Democratic Gov. Ted Schwinden and Republican leaders of the Montana Legislature. House Speaker Robert Marks, R-Clancy, claiming to speak for other legislative leaders, called upon the administration to cancel plans for a special session this spring and postpone any major action toward new corrections facilities or programs until 1983. Schwinden, who is in Arizona, replied through his top aide Dave Wanzeneid, accusing the Republican legislative leadership of political "squeamishness" and demanding action as soon as possible to reduce the prison population. Schwinden hinted strongly that he will call the special session for June 21.

Crime report

During the weekend, vandals broke several windows at the Men's Gym and the forestry greenhouse. Five windows were broken on the second floor of the east side of the Men's Gym, as was a window in an outer door of the building. The forestry greenhouse, located south of the Forestry Building, had 12 windows broken. A fire extinguisher was taken from Duniway Hall this weekend. The theft was discovered when a resident of Knowles Hall saw two people discharging the extinguisher between Knowles and Turner Hall.

Missoula Area Gasoline Antitrust Litigation

If you are a natural person and resided in the area in Missoula, Montana between October 1, 1976 and March 29, 1979, and purchased gasoline at retail in the Missoula, Montana area during that period of time, your rights may be affected by this litigation and you should read this notice carefully.

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN:

A. Gasoline Antitrust Litigation.

On March 29, 1979, Mike Greeley, the Montana Attorney General, filed a lawsuit in the United States District Court in Missoula, Montana area. The complaint in that lawsuit alleges, among other things, that the defendants in the case conspired to fix retail prices of gasoline in violation of the federal and state antitrust laws.

B. Partial Settlement

While not admitting liability, certain of the defendants have agreed with the State of Montana to settle the litigation as to them by paying the total sum of $12,000 to the Antitrust Enforcement Bureau revolving fund or the general fund of the State of Montana. In addition, these defendants have agreed to a number of other items including the entry of a final judgment against them that prohibits them from engaging in certain activities that the State of Montana believes to be part of an unlawful scheme to fix the retail price of gasoline in the Missoula, Montana area. These settlements have been approved by the court and if no substantial objections are made to them as a result of this notice, a full and final judgment will be entered against these defendants by the court ninety (90) days after the date of this notice.

C. Trial Pending Against Remaining Defendant.

The court has set the trial of this action against the one remaining defendant, SuperAmerica, a division of Ashland Oil, Inc., to commence on Wednesday, the 2nd of June, 1982.

D. Exclusion.

Unless you elect to be excluded from this litigation you will be bound by the aforesaid settlements and the anticipated judgment that will be entered by the court after trial of this matter. You may elect to be excluded from this litigation by writing a request to be excluded to:

Your request must be postmarked not later than May 31, 1982. If you elect to be excluded you will be free to pursue whatever legal rights you may have in this matter yourself. You will not be bound by any of the settlements or judgments in this action.

E. Further Information.

Circle Square has community spirit

The Circle Square Community Center needs more support in order to keep going, according to Don Kain, director of the center. The center, located at the corner of Higgins and Alder, is owned by Missoula businessman Carl Dragstedt. It opened last February.

According to Kain, Dragstedt wanted to keep the building in use and also do something for the community so he offered the space for a community center.

The original idea behind the center was for it to be operated by a local coalition of non-profit groups, Kain said. He said Missoula Advocacy was the only group willing to "stick their necks out" at the time.

"Rather than let the idea slip through our fingers, I put everything in my name — utilities, the lease and an insurance policy," Kain said. "That was the only way we could keep the thing going."

Dragstedt charged no rent for the first month of operation, Kain said, and accepted half-payments the following two months. "He's willing to stand behind it as long as people are behind it," Kain said.

"We're trying to establish a place in Missoula to support non-profit groups and to bring people downtown," he said. "One of my ideas is to integrate the campus with the downtown area. A lot of people won't come to events just because they're on campus."

In addition to the space for events, there also is office space available in the building. Kain said that by next fall, he hopes to have enough support from people and groups to keep the center open during the day. Now, it opens only for scheduled events.

Kain said he is in the process of working with the Missoula City Council, the Montana Council for the Arts, people representing downtown redevelopment and downtown businessmen. He said they and the center can benefit from each other.

One benefit for the businessmen is the teen dances the center holds Friday nights in connection with Friends to Youth, Kain said.

"Teen dances can be one solution to the problem of the drag on Friday and Saturday nights," he said. "The only thing to do is to offer kids an enjoyable alternative to cruising."

On May 22, in connection with the dance, teens will be "foot cruising." The students will sign up sponsors like participants in a walk-a-thon, but will earn their money by "cruising" up and down Higgins on foot.

Besides the dances, the center holds a flea market every Saturday and a coffee house with local musicians every Sunday night. Donations of time or items for the flea market also would be appreciated support.

"Hopefully, down the line, as groups see the potential of it, I'll be able to set up a non-profit board and go back to just being a booking agent," Kain said.

Run to benefit library

By Mark Smith
Kaimin Reporter

Runners will get a chance to pound the pavement for cookies and prizes this Aber Day during the Third Annual Library Benefit Run May 12.

Two-mile and 6.2-mile races are scheduled and $25 gift certificates from the UC Bookstore will be given to the top male and female finishers in both races. The top three finishers in each of the six male and female age categories will receive ribbons.

Entrants will be charged a $3 fee. May 11 is the last day to register at the library circulation desk.

Rich Gajdosik, run coordinator and programming director of the University of Montana physical therapy program, said the Aber Day run is not the type of race people try to win. "It's more of a participation event," he said.

The two-mile run, Gajdosik said, is "something most people could do even if they walked it," but that those who run the 6.2-mile event should prepare physically by running at least two miles a day.

The run begins at 1:30 p.m. and an awards ceremony will be held at 3 p.m.

Runners are encouraged to collect library donations. If a runner's entry fee and contributions total $20 or more, the runner may specify which school or department the library will use the money to buy materials for.

Interdepartmental competition also is encouraged, Karen Hatcher, a library cataloguer, said, and that the school or department that collects the most funds will receive a bonus to supplement their regular library fund.

CSD workshop teaches communication

By Kyle Albert

Kaimin Contributing Reporter

The components of a good marriage were discussed by 18 couples at a marriage preparation workshop last night sponsored by the Center for Student Development.

The workshop was designed by Frank Matule, a graduate student in interpersonal communication. Matule formed the workshop for independent study credit and to aid in a book he is writing on preparation for marriage.

The workshop teaches skills in communication, handling conflict, problem solving and other issues that are a part of married life. Group discussions, private discussions between couples and written worksheets help couples become more aware of their relationship and help solve problems.

Matule numerically rated the strength of potential marriages. Multiple-choice questions with answers of varying worth were added up to obtain a total. Scores of 100 were indicative of a healthy relationship, but anything below 75 pointed to urgent problems, Matule said.

Couples also privately discussed the successes and failures of their parent's marriages. Matule said that quite often people repeat the mistakes of their parents if they are not aware of them.

"Love is like taking care of a plant," Matule said. If love is nurtured, it grows; if it is neglected, it dies, he said.

He blames the failure of some marriages on a lack of relationship skills, or communication, between partners.

Four more sessions will be held Wednesday at 7 p.m. in Liberal Arts 204. Next week, Matule plans a discussion on intimacy and partners' similarities and differences. For more information, call CSD at 243-4711.
